For immediate release 2/10/2017:

The National Cannabis Industry Association awarded Paradigm Supercritical Innovations the Cannatech Award for their PSICO2 Extraction Systems, which “Revolutionize essential oil extraction, eliminate downtime, and increase production with unsurpassed purity of cannabis extracts”, said Aaron Smith, NCIA's Executive Director.

Oregon's Matthias Crandall CEO of Paradigm Supercritical Innovations and designer of the PSICO2 Extraction Systems, accepted the Cannatech award for ‘Honoring Technology Development in Infused Products & Extractions’ at the presentation ceremony during the Seed to Sale show in Denver February 1st.

PSICO2 Extraction Systems are manufactured by Paradigm Supercritical Innovations in Oregon.

###

About Paradigm Supercritical Innovations:

We are an Oregon company located in the Eugene area, founded by innovator Matthias Crandall and entrepreneur Tom Mitchell. With years of research and development, PSICO2 Extraction Systems were designed for the extraction and collection of highly concentrated extracts, all in a single pass. The results are scientifically validated and revolutionary. We build PSICO2 Extraction Systems to suit your processing needs. Featuring dual chambers, these systems allow for continuous operation while running the chambers in staggered or concurrent processing. Starting at $47,995 the PSICO2 Bandit can potentially pay for itself in seven days (of accumulated operation).
